They are Better.

Mr. J. R. Blake's family after suffering as few families have ever done, seems now to be on improving ground. Mr. Blake himself is better, but confined to his bed. Mrs. Blake and their children, after being near death's door, are fairly on the road to a speedy recovery. No family ever had greater sympathy from neighbors.

At South Broad.

The construction force of the G. C. & N. are now at South Broad River, where they will be detained for two weeks in putting up the bridge. South Broad river is about twenty-five miles from Athens. The bridge at five miles from Athens. The bridge at Athens across Oconee river is now in course of erection. With good luck the trains will run into Athens some time in August.

An old Friend.

Rev J. A. Myers, of the Associate Reformed church, paid us a pleasant call last Monday while on his way to attend the commencement at Due West. He will be the guest of Professor Hood. Mr. Myers was the friend of a little printer boy at Due West many years ago, who remembers him still with gest kindness,

Years. Nine years ago, six members of one family engaged in skinning a calf that had been affected with the disease. Last week four of them died with the disease, and it is thought that others will die.

From Texas.

Mr. J. W. Bullock, of Valleys Mills, Texas, is visiting the land of his birth, and spending a few weeks with kindred and the friends of his forefathers. He left Ninety-Six twenty-six years ago, when only nine years old.

Take your soiled clothes to E. F. Gailliard, and let him make them look brighter and better than they did the day they were bought out of the store. He has been off under city tailors, and after an experience of four years in a fashionable tailorshop, knows exactly how to brighten up old clothes, and he has learned the art of making new clothing.

Colonel Jones, the slayer of the Pressly family in Edgefield, was convicted last Saturday of "Manslaughter." The shortest sentence that can be intileted is two years at hard labor—unless the governor should knoner pardon him, which is not probable. He has been an honored guest of the jailer for several years and has been tried six times.

MRS. A. E. Brill, sister of B. M. Magee, J. M. Magee, and H. P. Magee, was burned to death at Piedmont last Sunday morning. She attempted to pour kerosene on the fire, when the invisible gas which often surrounds the kerosene can exploded, covering Mrs. Bell with the burning fluid.

To say that we are sorry that the Georgia lentral Rullroad has passed into the hands of the Richmond and Danville Rallroad, through Central Railroad has passed into the hands of the Richmond and Danville Railroad, through its lease to the Georgia Pacific, would be to say what we are far from feeling. Because so long as the Central remained under its old control there were positively no hopes for Port Royal, and many fears. For the influence possessed by Savannah over the Central served to overshadow any other port, and Port Royal especially. That it has become a part of a great and liberal railroad system, controlled by men whose range of vision extends a little beyond Hutchenson's Island, in the Savannah River, is matter for congratulation. It is a terrible blow to the heads of departments in the Central system, to lose their nice, fat, lucrative jobs; but sweeping changes in the line of economey were to be expected when the Richmond and Danville extended its jurisdiction over the Central system and the Ocean Steamship Company. The sensation Monday in Savannah was immense. The Morning News of Thursday is says:

____ (Ladies Home Journal.)

The great element of danger with woman's progress before the public lies in this fact; that it takes women away from home who ought to be there and nowhere else. The public platform is no place for a mother who has either sons or daughters to educate. If woman's progress is going to tend in that direction, then the sooner that advancement stops the better. The first thought of a wife or a mother should be her home; all things, no matter how important, are secondary to that. No matter how rampant may become certain public evils, let her see to it that she keeps evils, let her see to it that she keeps to account.

Everybody should have a good pasture as the cost is very small when built with property. Which they held absolutely. Those to whom deeds of Conveyance were made had the discretion to come into holch-pot or stay out as they saw fit. Her intention was that those to whom she devised property should have the same discretion. She certainly did not intend to deprive the devisees of any rights conferred on the others, it would rather seem she intended to confer greater rights on the two devisees than on the others.

If the above should be accepted as the scheme of the will then the two devisees are not compelled to go into lotch-pot.

of the will then the two devisees are not compelled to go into hotch-pot.

The other side, however, contend that the testatrix intended to force all parties into hotch-pot, and that all should share equally.

This view cannot prevail, because ist. The testatrix shows by her will that the "division" mentioned in her will was the division of the 210 acres of land, and the per-
